*“What I wish above all,
is to continue progressing. In order to be ever closer to nature, and to better translate it onto canvas. One doesn’t impose oneself on a subject.
It is futile to take up the brushes if you haven’t felt
the emotional impact, which leads to creation.
As for me, it is in nature that is born the irresistible desire to paint.”*

As a devotee of Impressionism and all that it inspires and expresses, I too have been fascinated with sculpture from an impressionist viewpoint. Early on in my career, possibly 20 years ago, I began to sculpt having been so moved by the body of work of Camille Claudel's who is also infamous for her relationship with Rodin. I later studied with Andre Del Debbio.

Much like Renoir and Degas my passion for sculpture has been my "Secret Garden". However, I am now delighted to share a small collection of my sculpture to premier with my recent painting at this exhibition.
